The spirit of inquiry and discontent has invaded even the most cloistral of our schools, and time-honoured methods and traditional aims are everywhere being challenged and criticized. Instinctively we look abroad to see how our neighbours are faring, not without a hope that a careful investigation of their methods of dealing with similar problems may in some cases indicate a solution or a way out of our growing difficulties. The present volume of collected studies is concerned with a large number of such thorny questions. The first and longest, which has already appeared as a Board of Education special report, deals with some of the principal controversies connected with secondary education in France and England.
